Hello, everyone!

My name is George and I'm from London. I love to do the 'Camino de Santiago'. I have already walked almost all of the routes. I'm only missing one that is very short and begins in a city on the north coast of Galicia. The city has a very famous port and the buildings are covered in hundreds of white windows known as 'galleries'. You're sure to discover which city it is.

I will tell you a hint: there was a very brave woman who fought here against the English Army in 1589, she was an heroine and her name was María Pita.

In addition, I am only 73 kms from Santiago!

Talk soon and... 'buen camino'!

George

P.S. don't forget to check out the stamp on the envelope!
